WELLSBORO', Pa., December 5. M. H. C. BILL SHAKSPEARE.

In the course of a recent lecture at Chicago, Mr. James Grant Wilson, of that city, introduced an anecdote related to him by his Quaker friend, William Howitt. Said Howitt: "As I was passing through Stratford one morning, I saw the master of the village school mustering his scholars to their task. I stopped, being pleased with the looks of the old man and said, You seem to have a considerable number of lads here; shall you raise another Shakepeare from among them, think you?' 'Why,' replied the master, 'I bave a Shakspeare now in the school.' I knew that Shakspeare had no descendants beyond the second generation, and I was not aware that there was any of his family remaining. But it seems that the posterity of his sister Joan Hart, who is mentioned in his will, yet exists, part under her marriage name of Hart, at Tewkesberry, and a family in Stratford of the name of Smith. "I have a Shakspeare here,' said the master with evident pride and pleasure. 'Here boys, here,' He quickly mustered his laddish troop in a row and said to me. 'There now, sir, can you tell me which is Shakepeare?' I glanced my eye along the line, and instantly fixing it upon one boy, said, 'That is the Shakspeare.' You are right,' said the master, 'that is Shakspeare. The Shakspeare cast of coun-Rattles, Whirs, Dolls, Ladies in full dress, tenance is there. That is William Shakepeare Smith, a lineal descendant of the poet's Sister.' Mr. Howitt adds, 'It sounded strangely enough, as I was passing along the street in the evening, to hear some of the same schoolboys say one to another, 'That is TUST IN SEASON-Rocking Horses, Velo- the gensleman who gave Bill Shakepeare a
